ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It would not have been possible to write this doctoral thesis without the blessings of my Gurudev, the most caring and merciful one. Every moment I could feel his grace.

I wish to extend my gratitude and sincere appreciation to those who have contributed to this thesis and supported me all along. First of all, I am extremely grateful to my respected supervisor, Professor G. Ram, Department of Sociology, Assam University Silchar, for initiating me into sociological research, for his guidance and all the useful discussions and brainstorming sessions, especially during the difficult stage of conceptual development. His deep insights helped me at various stages of my research and painstakingly going through several drafts of my thesis. I also remain indebted for his understanding and support during the times when I was really down and depressed due to personal family problems.

My sincere gratitude is reserved for Professor B. K. Behera, Head, Department of Sociology, Assam University Silchar, for his invaluable insights and suggestions for my thesis and in all aspects.

My special thanks goes to the Principal, Radhamadhab College, Silchar Dr. Pronoy Ranjan Deb for providing me the opportunity to carry out my research work. I am grateful to the University Grants Commission, (North East Regional Office) for granting me teachers' fellowship for my Ph.D work. I would also like to take this opportunity to thank my fellow colleagues of Radhamadhab College for their support and encouragement. I further take the opportunity to thank the office staff of the University and my College for all their help and cooperation.

Heartfelt thanks to Sri. Pradip Tanti, Goan Panchayat President, Koomber Tea Estate and Sri Satyabrata Dey, social worker and Sri Bidyut Deb Choudhury, District Programme Officer, Sarva Siksha Mission, I will never forget their support for providing me enormous help and cooperation during my data collection and field visit. A big "Thank you!" also goes out to all my respondents who provided me with the invaluable data for my study. My heartfelt gratitude to Ashok Verma, Annapurna Devi, Jhumur Pandey, Kajal Demta and other writers for their help and cooperation without which it would not be possible to complete my work.

My heartfelt gratitude to my research scholar friends who have helped and supported me a lot especially Sister Sweta, whose prayers pushed me ahead. A special thanks to Chakradhari Saha for helping me in analysing the data.

My sincere thanks are due to Sri Sandip Choudhury who fed several drafts of the text into the computer with meticulous care before bringing out the final draft. I would equally thank Shruti for her help and especially thank Shiv Kumar, who was my student and is presently the circulation manager of Prena Bharati, a Hindi Newspaper of Barak Valley for assisting me in data collection, transcription and translation.

Words cannot express the feelings I have for my husband, Dr. B.P. Nath and my beloved daughter, Miss Madhumita Nath, for their constant and unconditional support emotionally as well as physically. Thanks! Madhu. Special thanks are also due to all my relatives for their amazing support, especially Shri Sukhomoy Nath, my brother-in-law, who helped me with the transcriptions.

Finally, I would like to acknowledge the most important person in my life – my beloved son, Gaurav, who left me at the focal point of my research study, to unite himself with the Almighty, but he had been a constant source of strength and inspiration for completion of my study and I dedicate my Ph.D work in his name.
